The Chicago Convention.

Delegates and their alternates, and thousands of seekers-after office either forthemselves or their friends, are pouring into Chicago about this time 'n large numbers. For the next few days that city will be the scene of great excitement not, perhaps, so great as when Mr. Lincoln was first nominated, but sufficiently so, we venture to say, to make what may transpire of intense interest to all sections of the country. Month's ago the people put in nomination for President Gen. Grant, and the Convention w'll make shot (work in coofirming that non-ination. No one will contend that Gea.
